Database	Primary Sources Primary sources are law generated by a governmental body, e.g. statutes (generated by legislature) or cases (generated by judiciary). Primary sources are binding.	Secondary Sources Secondary sources are resources which may be written by lawyers or judges or other legal professionals which comment on the law, categorise the law or otherwise interpret the primary sources. Secondary sources are persuasive authority.	Advanced Search

Making the best of searching: general tips

Search techniques

Search techniques are ways of using search terms in finding required information from search tools, such as search engines (Google), the library catalogue and online databases.

To achieve good search results, it is necessary to use search techniques.

The following are some of the most common search techniques that are applicable to various searching tools.

- Boolean Logic
- Parenthesis
- Phrase searching
- Truncation
- Wildcards
- Field searching
